EARLY BAR TIPS

- 1 Organize your summer logistics. Will you stay in Phoenix? Move back home? Stay with friends in a new city? It's also wise to negotiate clear time boundaries with employers, family, and friends.
- 2 Choose law school courses with an eye to the bar exam. Courses covering subjects include: Evidence, Criminal Law and Criminal Procedure, Contracts and Sales, Constitutional Law, Real Property, Torts, and Civil Procedure.
- 3 Allocate regular weekly time this spring to start preparing. The single biggest challenge for most applicants is trying to learn a high volume of technical information while working lots of practice questions. It's often described as "drinking from a fire hose." There's a better way: getting ahead on the learning curve now buys time this summer to do more practice-testing.
