

How Do I Know Which Study Aids are Right for Me?

Sean Harrington, Electronic Services Librarian - Ross-Blakley Law Library

The Law Library collects a wide range of study materials because they present (usually similar) material differently and therefore can accommodate different learning styles. To determine which study aids work best for you, skim the content, either in print or online to see which sparks your interest. Some of the materials serve different functions. One title may restate class materials in a summary form (Examples & Explanations), while another may give you a boatload of practice multiple choice questions (Q&A), and another may be audio lectures for your commute (Sum & Substance).

I hope the table helps and remember, you can always Meet with a Librarian.
